INTRODUCTION

The Cariyāpiṭaka is the fifteenth book of the Khuddaka-Nikāya of the Sutta Piṭaka. It is a post-Asokan work and its name implies a canonical collection of stories illustrating the modes in which the Bodhisattva practised cariyā (conduct). The ten perfections ($p\bar{a}ra-mitas$) whereby Gautama is said to have attained Buddhahood are mentioned in this text. The stories in verses of the Cariyāpiṭaka

· Importance and meaning are parallel to the Jātaka stories in prose. It was repeated by \bar{A} nanda and rehearsed by the five hundred arahats who were members of the

First Council. The first two $p\bar{a}ramit\bar{a}s$ namely, $d\bar{a}na$ and $s\bar{s}la$ are illustrated by ten stories each and the last fourteen refer to the other eight perfections, namely, renunciation, wisdom, energy, forbearance, truth, resolution, amity and equanimity. In the Buddhavamsa the term pāramitā has been employed as a synonym of Buddhakārakā dhammā, i.e. the virtues tending towards making a Buddha. The Cariyāpitaka is the only work of the Pali canon in which a brief and systematic account of the Buddhist pāramitās is given, although references may be found scattered here and there in the Pāli Nikāyas.

Piţaka means basket; cariyā means conduct or daily duties performed by a Bodhisatta (i.e. the state acquired by a person after he has determined to attain bodhi or enlightenment and before he attains it) to fulfil the ten perfections (pāramitās) which are absolutely necessary for the attainment of bodhi. Cariyāpiţaka means a basket of conduct or daily duties. Some translate it as a collection of the Buddha's meritorious acts. Woodward in the preface to his translation of the Udāna translates Cariyāpiţaka as verses on the Buddha perfections. The text is called the Cariyāpiţaka because it shows the effectiveness of good conduct of the Teacher in his former births. Piţaka is used in the sense of division according to the commentator (Bhājanattho pi hi Piţaka-saddo niddiţtho).

The verses are written in anutthuva chanda. The language is simple and the style is similar to that of the Dhammapada.

The stories told in the verses of the Cariyāpițaka are to be found in the Jātakas. Dr. Morris who edited the text of the Carlyāpilaka for the P.T.S., has traced all the stories found in the work to their sources excepting three, namely, (I) Mahāgovinda, (2) Dhammādhamma and (3) Candakumāra, the sources of which have been traced by me; and references showing the sources from which these three stories have been taken are given by me.

It is interesting to note, as Dr. Morris points out in his introduction to the Cariyāpiţaka (P.T.S.), that 'the Jātakamālā contains thirty-five birth-stories, ten of which have the same titles as those of the Cariyāpiţaka tales. In the Mahāvastu we find the Kapirājacariyam under the title of 'the story of the Porpoise' (= the Sumsumārajātaka) as well as the Vānarajātaka and Mahāgovindacariyam. The Bhadrakalpa-Avadāna contains the stories of Sīlavanāga and Sutasoma. The Bodhisattva-Avadāna relates the Sivi, Sasa, Matsya, Vaţţapotaka, Ruru and Sutasoma birth-stories. It also has the Buddhabodhijātaka which resembles the Culabodhicariyam of the Cariyāpiţaka.' (The Buddhavamsa and the Carivāpitaka, Edited by the Rev. Richard Morris, P.T.S. Edition.)

We give below a short résumé of the stories found in the Cariva*bitaka*. Akatti was meditating in a forest. As Contents of the book he was making a strong effort to acquire merits. Inda came to test him in the guise of a brahmin. Akatti thrice gave in charity the leaves heaped up in front of his leaf-hut, to the brahmin for the attainment of bodhi (enlightenment).

Sankha went to the sea shore and on the way he saw a sayambhu (Buddha) treading the path which was very hot Sankha and the sands on the path were also heated by the rays of the sun. Sankha saluted him and gave him in charity a pair of wooden slippers and an umbrella for the attainment of bodhi.

Dhanañjaya was the king of Indapatta. Some brahmins came to him from Kalinga, greatly troubled by Dhanañjaya drought and famine, for a royal elephant, the presence of which in a country brings copious rain. Dhanañjava gave in charity the elephant to them for the attainment of bodhi.

Sudassana was the king of Kusāvatī. He thrice declared that he would satisfy the desire of everybody, when Sudassana communicated to him. Hungry and thirsty people as well as those in need of garlands, unguents, clothes, wooden slippers, etc., came to him and he fulfilled their desires. In many parts of his kingdom, arrangements were made to offer charities. The charities made by him with a view to the attainment of bodhi. were unparalleled.

Govinda was a chaplain of seven kings. His income from the seven kingdoms was given in charity by him Govinda for the attainment of bodhi.

Nimi was the king of Mithilā. He built four dānasālās (alms houses) in which charities, on a large scale, in Nimi drink, food, seats, garments, etc., were made to beasts, birds, human beings, all for the attainment of bodhi.

Canda-Kumāra was the son of Ekarājā of Pupphavatī. He offered charities whole-heartedly and he never Canda-Kumāra ate anything without first giving it to a beggar.

Sivi was the king of Arittha. He thought that he would offer such charities as no man ever offered. He was ready to offer

Sivi his eyes in charity if anybody would ask for them. In order to test him, Inda in the guise of an old brahmin, came to him and asked for one of his eyes which he gave with great pleasure. When asked for another of his eyes, he gladly offered it to him. Simply for the attainment of bodhi, he offered his two eyes in charity.

Vessantara was the son of Sañjaya and Phusati, king and queen of Jetuttara. When he was eight years old, he thought that he would offer his eyes, ears, heart, flesh, blood, etc., to anybody, if he so desired. Once on a fullmoon sabbath day he went to the alms-house, riding on an elephant named Paccaya to offer charity. This elephant was the royal elephant the presence of which would turn bad days into good days, drought into rain, famine into good harvest. At this time there was an outbreak of famine at Kalinga and the king of Kalinga sent some brahmins to him to request him to give the elephant. Vessantara at once gave him the elephant. On account of this act of giving the elephant to them, the inhabitants of the kingdom of Sivi became very angry and banished him from the kingdom to the Vankapabbata. Vessantara asked the people of the kingdom of Sivi to allow him to offer a charity before he left Jetuttara. Being allowed he caused drums to be beaten in every part of his kingdom to announce that he would offer a large charity. There was a talk among the people that king Vessantara was being driven out of his kingdom for his charity but that it was a wonder that he was again preparing for a large charity. He left the city after offering in charity elephants, horses, chariots, slaves, slave-girls, cows and everything he possessed. He went to the Vankapabbata with his queen Maddi, son and daughter, Jāli and Kanhā. One day he offered his son and daughter to a cruel brahmin named Yojaka in the absence of Maddi. In order to protect Maddi, a faithful woman, Inda came to him in the guise of a brahmin and asked for Maddī. Vessantara gave Maddi, his queen to the brahmin. For the attainment of bodhi, Vessantara gave in charity his wife, son and daughter. Vessantara's father came to the Vankapabbata and took him to his kingdom. On his arrival the kingdom became prosperous.

THE CARIYAPITAKA

Once the Bodhisatta Siddhārtha was born as a hare. He used to live in a forest with three friends. His Sasapandita duty was to instruct his friends to offer charity. to observe precepts and to do other meritorious deeds. On a Sabbath day his friends collected something to offer but he had nothing to give in charity. To test him Inda in the guise of a brahmin first came to him and asked for something to eat. He told the brahmin that he would offer something not offered by anybody else before and he requested the brahmin to kindle a fire. The hare shook his body in order to let go other creatures existing on his body and then he jumped into the fire in order to have his body cooked so that the brahmin might take the cooked flesh. Because of his virtue the fire became cold as ice.

Sīlava-nāga was devoted to his mother and he used to live in Silava-naga a forest looking after his old mother. A king was informed by the frequenters of the forest that an elephant was available in the forest which was worthy of being king's mangalahatthī. The king sent a skilful elephant-driver who saw the elephant in the forest picking up lotus-reed for his mother. When the elephant was caught, it did not show any sign of anger nor any grief for its mother. For the fulfilment of sīlapāramī the elephant behaved very gently when caught.

Once Bodhisatta was born as a snake king named Bhūridatta Bhūridatta who was taken to the devaloka by the king Virupakkha. Seeing the beauty and wealth of the Devaloka Bhūridatta made up his mind to acquire virtues which would enable him to attain heaven. He spent his days taking little food and observing precepts. He lay down on an anthill observing precepts. A certain person took him to various places, made him dance and gave him lots of trouble which he patiently bore for the observance of the precepts.

Bodhisatta was born as a snake-king named Campeyya. On a Campeyya festival day when he was observing the precepts, a snake-charmer caught him and took him to the palace where he was made to dance. He was endowed with such a miraculous power that he could perform many miracles but for the fulfilment of sīlapāramī, he patiently did what he was forced to do. Once the Bodhisatta was born as Cūlabodhi. Finding fear in Cūlabodhi the world and delight in renunciation, he left his beautiful wife and led the life of a hermit. At Benares he was living in the king's garden, not being attached to anything. His wife followed him into the garden and engaged herself in meditation there, a little away from him. The king asked him about his beautiful wife but he was informed by Cūlabodhi that she was not his wife but she was following the same dhamma and the same sāsana. The king forcibly took away the woman but Cūlabodhi patiently calmed his anger for the attainment of sīlapāramī.

Bodhisatta was born as a king of the buffaloes living in a forest. Mahimsa-rāja He was horrible to look at, stout, strong, and bulky. He used to lie down everywhere according to his will. In a nice place in the forest, he used to live. A monkey came there and troubled him much. A yakkha advised him to kill the monkey but he did not pay attention to his word, because the observance of the precepts might be affected.

In a beautiful place near the banks of the Ganges there was a deer named Ruru. Farther up a person being oppressed by his master jumped from the spot, not caring for his life. The person being carried by the current came to the deer who took him to his abode. The deer asked him not to disclose the spot where he was living. He promised not to do so but he left the place and soon came back with the king for profit. The deer said everything to the king who was going to kill the person for his treacherous conduct. The deer came to the rescue of the person with the result that the deer was killed with the arrow thrown by the king.

A Jatila named Mätanga was a very pious hermit. He used Mātanga to live on the banks of the Ganges with a brahmin. The brahmin out of jealousy cursed the Jatila that his head would be broken. The hermit was very pious and faultless. The curse was therefore effective in the case of the brahmin and the hermit sacrificed his own life and saved the brahmin.

A yakkha named Dhamma was endowed with miraculous powers and compassionate to all. He was always engaged in performing ten virtuous deed: and instructing others to do so. He used to travel from place to place with his retinue. Another yakkha named Adhamma used to travel from place to place instructing people to commit ten kinds of sins. One day both of them met each other on the way and quarrelled. Dhamma for the fulfilment of $s\bar{s}la$ - $p\bar{a}ram\bar{s}$ did not quarrel with him and allowed him to pass.

In the kingdom of Pañcāla, in the city of Kappila, there was a Jayaddisa king named Jayaddisa. His son was Sutadhamma who was pious and virtuous and he was always protecting his own retinue. King Jayaddisa went out to hunt and was caught by a demon who was asked by the king to save his life for the time being by taking the deer. The king said he would again come to him after making necessary arrangements in his kingdom. Sutadhamma went to the demon not being armed. He asked the demon to kindle a fire into which he would jump to have his body cooked for his food. For the fulfilment of sīla he gave up his life.

Sankhapāla was a snake king, endowed with miraculous powers

Sankhapāla and very poisonous. He sat at the junction of the four streets to offer himself in charity to any beggar. The sons of the Bhojas who were very rough, harsh and cruel, drew him with a rope pushed through his nose. For the observance of precepts he did not cherish anger.

When the Bodhisatta Siddhārtha was a prince named Yudhañ-Yudhañjaya jaya in the kingdom of Kuru, he became disgusted with the worldly life on seeing dew drops becoming dried up by the rays of the sun. He left the world after saluting his parents. For the attainment of bodhi he did not care for the kingdom nor listen to the prayers of the king and his subjects.

In the city of Indapatta, the Bodhisatta was born as a prince Somanassa named Somanassa. The king of Indapatta had a hermit named Kuhakatāpasa. The king used to love and respect Kuhaka and built a beautiful garden for him. Somanassa said to Kuhaka thus, 'You are worthless, you have not the qualities of an honest man in you and you have fallen off from the state of a samana. You have abandoned all good qualities such as shame, etc.' Kuhaka became angry with him and induced the king to drive him from the kingdom. Some cruel persons caught him and took him away from his mother. They presented him before the king. He then succeeded in appeasing the wrath of the king who offered him the kingdom. He left the world for the attainment of bodhi.

The Bodhisatta was born as the son of Kāsīrāja. He was here he was brought up in an iron house and hence he was called Ayoghara. He had to earn his bread with great difficulty. He was offered the kingdom but he did not accept it and renounced the world for the attainment of bodhi.

Bodhisatta was born in a Kṣatriya family consisting of seven ^{Bhīsa} brothers and sisters. Parents, brothers, sisters and companions asked him to marry and lead a household life but he renounced the world for the attainment of bodhi.

In the city of Brahmavaddhana, Bodhisatta was born in a very sonapandita to enjoy worldly pleasures but he did not hear them and renounced the worldly life for bodhi.

The Bodhisatta, in order to attain bodhi (enlightenment) had to fulfil the ten pāramitās or perfections for which Temiva he had to undergo several births to fulfil each pāramitā. He fulfilled the adhitthāna pāramitā by steadfastly adhering to his endeavour to become a Buddha like a mountain unmoved by storm coming from all directions. He was born as the son of the king of Kāśī. He was brought up in a way that befits a prince. But he was not destined to indulge in the vile pleasures of a worldly life, which lead one to niraya or hell. In order to carry out what he desired he became deaf, dumb, and motionless through the help of the guardian deity. Thus he was not fit to do any sort of work. The commander, the chaplain, and the country-folk unanimously agreed to leave him. The charioteer took him out of the city and dug a pit in order to bury him alive. But the Bodhisatta did not give up his steadfast resolve.

Bodhisatta was born as a monkey-king living in a cave on the ^{Kapirāja} banks of a river, where a crocodile which was waiting to catch hold of him invited him to come to him. Vānarinda said, 'You open your mouth, I am coming'. Then the monkey-king jumped over his head and fell on the other side of the river. This he did for the sake of truth. When the Bodhisatta was born as a hermit named Saccasavhaya, he asked the people to speak the truth. He effected the unity of the people by means of truth.
Bodhisatta was born as a young quail, his parents left him in the nest and went away for food. At this time there was a forest fire. He could not fly as his wings were undeveloped. He asked the fire to extinguish itself as his parents were not in the nest and he also was unable to move.
He acquired much merit in the previous births and hence the fire became extinguished due to the influence of this truth. Bodhisatta was born as a fish king in a big pond. Crows, vultures, cranes and other bipeds were always Maccharāja vultūres, cranes and ocher bipeds were always troubling his relatives. So he thought of saving his relatives but finding no means, he made up his mind to save them by truth. He said that as far as he could remember, he never willingly killed any being. By this truth he prayed for rain. Soon there was a heavy rain and lands high and low were overflooded, fishes went away hither and thither and the nests of birds were destroyed.

Bodhisatta was born as a sage named Kaṇhadīpāyana. He used to live unknown and free from attachment. A fellow brahmacārī named Maṇḍavya came to his hermitage with his wife and son. The son irritated a snake which bit him. His parents became overwhelmed with grief. Kaṇhadīpāyana did not do any harm to the angry snake. He saved the son and his parents were relieved.

Bodhisatta was born as a king named Sutasoma who was Sutasoma attacked by a demon. The demon told the king that if he could free him, then one hundred Ksatriyas who were seized and brought for the sacrifice would be sent to him. The king said that he would again come to him. The king then abandoned his wealth and returned to the demon. For the sake of truth the king spared his life.

When the Bodhisatta was living in a forest known by the name Suvannasama of Sāma and used to practise meditation on $mett\bar{a}$, Inda sent to him a lion, and a tiger to test him. He was not frightened by the ferocious animals which surrounded him while he was practising meditation on $mett\bar{a}$ (friendliness) nor did he betray any fear before others. Bodhisatta was born as a famous king named Ekarājā. He used to observe precepts and instructed his subjects to do so.

He used to perform ten good deeds and caused his subjects to do so. He supported a great multitude by offering four requisites. A king named Dabbasena attacked his capital and looted his kingdom. Ekarājā always desired mettā for the enemy although the enemy in his presence cut off his ministers, subjects, and seized his wife and son.

Bodhisatta was born as Mahālomahaṃsa. In the cemetery, Mahālomahaṃsa he used to lie down on a bed made of the bones of the dead; villagers showed him various beautiful sights; some came to him with various kinds of food and garlands. He was indifferent to those who troubled him and to those who pleased him. He retained the balance of his mind in prosperity or in adversity.

What is a $p\bar{a}ram\bar{i}$ or $p\bar{a}ram\bar{i}t\bar{a}$? $P\bar{a}ram\bar{i}$ is the same term as $paramit\bar{a}s \text{ discussed}$ $p\bar{a}ramit\bar{a}$. It means 'perfection,' 'completeness' OF 'highest state' (What De Highest state) or 'highest state'. The Bodhisatta, in order to attain bodhi, had to fulfil ten pāramitās (perfections). He had to undergo several births to fulfil each pāramitā. The pāramitās in Theravāda Buddhism are ten in number, e.g. dāna (charity), sīla (morality), nekkhamma (renunciation), aditthana (resolution), sacca (truth), mettā (friendliness), upekkhā (indifference), khanti (forbearance), viriya (energy), and $pa \tilde{n} \tilde{n} \tilde{a}$ (wisdom). In the introduction to the Jātaka-atthakathā (Vol. 1) we read that these ten $p\bar{a}ramit\bar{a}s$ are the Buddha-kārakādhammā, i.e. the precepts which make one Buddha. Siddhartha before attaining bodhi found out these pāramitās to be the only means of attaining Buddhahood. All the previous Buddhas also had to fulfil them in order to attain Buddhahood. Siddhartha fulfilled these pāramitās and the Cariyāpițaka gives us an account of how he fulfilled them. The last three $p\bar{a}ramit\bar{a}s$ are not noticed in the Cariyāpitaka which gives a brief account of how the Bodhisatta fulfilled each pāramitā. The Jātaka shows that the Bodhisatta Siddhartha had to undergo five hundred and fifty births to fulfil the ten pāramitās; but the Cariyāpitaka points out that he had to undergo thirty-five births to fulfil seven of the ten þāramitās.

The Bodhisatta Sumedha (afterwards Gautama) fulfilled all the $p\bar{a}ramit\bar{a}s$ because they are the Bodhikārakadhammas as I have already pointed out. He fulfilled danaparamita by giving in charity all the worldly things and his own life; he fulfilled sīlapāramitā by observing precepts without taking the least care for his life; he fulfilled nekkhamma pāramitā by renouncing the household life like a prisoner always anxious to be released from the prison; he fulfilled paññāpāramitā by learning whatever he could learn from anybody; he fulfilled viriyapāramitā by behaving like a lion, king of the beasts. in all its deportments; he fulfilled khantipāramitā by forbearing all the vicissitudes of life most patiently like the earth; he fulfilled saccabāramitā by not telling lies for fear of punishment or for temptation or even for the falling of thunder on his head; he fulfilled adhitthānabāramitā by steadfastly adhering to his endeavour to become a Buddha like a mountain unmoved by storm coming from all directions; he fulfilled mettaparamita by cherishing love and friendliness towards his friends and foes alike, like water cooling both the virtuous and the sinner; he fulfilled upekkhā pāramitā by being indifferent to sukha and dukkha (happiness and suffering) like the earth (Jātaka, Nidānakathā, Vol. I, pp. 20-21). These are the essential qualities which enable a person to acquire the state of a Buddha who is also called 'Dhammakāya' ('Body of the Law'). because he is the embodiment of these ten pāramitās. Dr. Barnett in his valuable notes given at the end of the beautiful translation of the Bodhicaryāvatāra of Śāntideva entitled 'The Path of Light' (Wisdom of the East series), says that the perfect charity (dāna $p\bar{a}ramit\bar{a}$ is not an actual deliverance of the world from poverty (misery due to worldly desire), but an intention for such deliverance: it is a grace of the spirit. Thus the purity of will is the greatest of all virtues and the foundation of all. He also speaks of the sīlapāramitā (perfect conduct) which consists essentially in the will to hurt no living creature (p. 98).

The $p\bar{a}ramit\bar{a}$ doctrine had its root in the age-old Indian conception of faith $(saddh\bar{a})$ particularly as developed in a sutta of the $Majjhima Nik\bar{a}ya$. Its main importance lies in its bearing on the problem of evolution of personality whether of the Buddha or Sāvaka or Paccekabuddha type.

The idea of $p\bar{a}ramit\bar{a}$ is similar according to northern and southern schools of Buddhism with slight variations. Dr. Barnett further points out that according to the chief northern schools, the $p\bar{a}ramit\bar{a}s$ or perfections are:—(I) almsgiving, (2) morality, (3) long-suffering, (4) manliness, (5) meditation, (6) mystic insight, (7) resolution, (8) strength, (9) knowledge, (10) skill in choice of means $(up\bar{a}ya)$. (The Path of Light, p. 21.)

The Mahāyāna Buddhist texts are full of information regarding the fulfilment of $p\bar{a}ramit\bar{a}s$ by the Bodhisatta but the Pali-Buddhist books furnish a meagre account of it, though references are found scattered here and there in the Nikāyas. The Śraddhotpādasūtra, the Jātakamālā, the Mahāvastu and the Avadānakalpalatā contain instances of pāramitā. The Cariyāpitaka is not only the only work of the Pali canon on the systematic treatment of pāramitās but also a valuable contribution which should be studied carefully in order to be thoroughly acquainted with the biography of the Buddha Gautama.

I am thankful to the editors of the P.T.S. and the Sinhalese editions which have been consulted in preparing my edition of the Cariyāpiţaka. The verses of this text are so easy that they do not require any translation. I have here summarized all the stories given in this work. I have also given notes and variant readings in the body of the text.

Since the publication of the first edition of this text in 1924, my English translation published in the Sacred Books of the Buddhist Series founded by Max Muller and carried on by Rhys Davids, has appeared in 1937. In 1939 Mr. D. L. Barua has edited Dhammapāla's commentary on it which has been published by the P.T.S. Mr. Barua has attempted to reconstruct this text with the help of some quotations in the Atthasālinī, the Jātaka Commentary and Dhammapāla's commentary on the Cariyāpițaka. His edition shows that there were other stories to illustrate the three pāramitās of viriya, paññā and adhițthāna.
